

PALISADE

GOLF COURSE

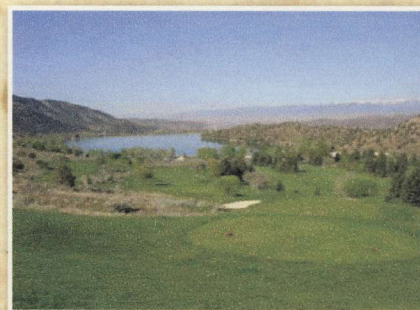

Hidden in the geographic center of Utah, Palisade is a beautiful 18-hole mountain course with towering trees, stunning vistas of the surrounding Sanpete County and breathtaking views of Palisade Reservoir. The fourth hole has been rated by the Deseret Morning News as one of the best short holes in the state and compared by the Salt Lake Tribune to the 12th hole at Augusta National. This 180-yard par-3 has an elevation drop of 70 feet and requires golfers to carry the ball over a canyon, and land it precisely on the green.

The greens at Palisade are thought of by many to be among the states most difficult.

The vistas from the top of the course overlooking much of Sanpete county and the reservoir.

The slop and undulation in the greens at palisade requires precision when approaching the greens.

COURSE DESCRIPTION:

Palisade State Park Golf Course measures at 6,360 yards from the back tee markers but plays longer because all the par-5s go uphill. However, the golf course will challenge even the most advanced player because of the difficulties encountered around the greens. The mountain layout has an elevation change of 230 feet rising from 5885 feet at the base to 6115 at the top.
